Cannon shots from Citadel Hill ring over Remembrance Day ceremony at Grand Parade Wreaths laid for local soldiers killed in Afghanistan

Chilly winds blew over Allan Tanner, a merchant navy veteran, as he sat in his wheelchair watching the Remembrance Day ceremony in Grand Parade Thursday.

Wrapped in blankets, he still managed to salute in honour of his fallen comrades.

"Lost also in these wars thousands of innocent victims, civilians, and military personnel alike," Rev. Patricia Malin said in her address to the crowd.

"War memorials all around the world testify to the fact that the fallen live forever in everyone's hearts."

For Second World War veteran Vern Westhaver, among the first Canadian troops to hit Juno beach on D-Day, the ceremony brought back a lot of memories.

At 88, the former Signal Corps radio operator says he still thinks about all the guys that didn't make it.

To this day, Westhaver said, he sometimes wonders if it was all worth it.

Convention centre talks forging ahead

Estabrooks confident municipality and province can come to an agreement on convention centre ◗ Federal government yet to commit funds for 'Nova Centre' ◗ Estabrooks expects unified voice between province and municipality in seeking money from feds

Provincial and municipal staff will meet Friday to continue negotiations on funding for the proposed convention centre for downtown Halifax.

Halifax regional council publicly announced its support for the project on Tuesday, following a marathon session that lasted more than 12 hours. Council's support is subject to pending negotiations with other levels of government.

Council voted 22-2 in favour of the project, then stayed behind closed doors to decide how to respond to the province's offer.

With the Jan. 14 signing deadline fast approaching, it's now up to provincial and municipal staff to try to work out a deal acceptable to both levels of government.

Transportation and Infrastructure Development Minister Bill Estabrooks said he is glad to hear the municipality is behind the project.

"My compliments to them for spending those numbers of hours and days going over it. Now the dialogue has to continue," he told reporters Wednesday.

"We look forward to ... getting down to reviewing what they consider acceptable."

Estabrooks admitted the timeframe is "of some consequence," with funding yet to be secured from the federal government. Federal MPs are scheduled to break for the holiday season on Dec. 17, and will not return until Jan. 31.

"But I'm confident in the fact that we can work this out so that, together, you know, not putting the cart ahead of the horse here or anything ... (we can) approach Ottawa and see if they're going to be in on it," Estabrooks said.

He also said the province hasn't asked developer Joe Ramia how firm the January deadline is.

The price of the convention centre will remain fixed at $159 million until Jan. 15, with the province and municipality being asked to contribute $57 million each. ● ALEX BOUTILIER

Proposal

- The province's offer, revealed to Halifax regional council on Oct. 19, included a property tax exemption on the convention centre and the disposition of the current trade centre.
- The municipality's counter-offer is not yet known, but Estabrooks stressed the province is open to compromise.

The sun returned yesterday and water levels are receding in rain-soaked areas of southwestern Nova Scotia.

The state of emergency was lifted in Quinan and Argyle and four families returned to their homes near Carleton Dam after four days.

There are many others who are displaced due to flood waters, and Barrington and Yarmouth remain under a local state of emergency.

The province's Emergency Management Office said they expected to have 30 more families return to their homes yesterday.

Crews built a walkway for pedestrian traffic in Quinan yesterday, and local businesses offered shuttle services to Yarmouth for supplies.

"Everyone is relieved that the situation in southwestern Nova Scotia is beginning to improve," said Ramona Jennex, minister of Emergency Management, in a statement yesterday.

About 20 families in the Raynardton area are still out of their houses below the Tusket dam..

All dams are being monitors because of high water levels.

According to Environment Canada, there will be no more rain until a chance of showers on Tuesday.

Act gives auditor all access to docs

RYAN TAPLIN/METRO

▶ Jacques Lapointe

Nova Scotia's auditor general will have access to all government business documents under a new act designed to give his office broader access to information.

Finance Minister Graham Steele said Wednesday the overhaul of the Auditor General Act would include access to cabinet and solicitor-client documents, although auditor general Jacques Lapointe will be required to keep the content of the confidential documents private.

"The improved access to information does not waive privilege or public interest immunity," said Steele. "The content of confidential and privileged documents will always remain protected ... but the auditor general will be able to see whatever he wants to see."

Steele said in the event of a disagreement over what information can be released, the legislation would enable the auditor general to go to court to get a ruling.

Landry under fire for inmate mix-up

Mistakenly released prisoner turned himself in on Wednesday morning

ALEX BOUTILIER
@METRONEWS.CA

Justice Minister Ross Landry came under fire on Wednesday for waiting an entire day to inform the public that an inmate at the Central Nova Correctional Facility in Burnside was mistakenly released.

Landry was informed late Monday afternoon that Vernon Martell, 41, was mistakenly released after a court date. He was sentenced to 84 days in the Burnside jail for breaching conditions.

Landry said he immediately instructed staff to "get the facts" and "get a release done up." But a release didn't come until 6:33 p.m. on Tuesday, after a reporter from the Chronicle-Herald called the Department of Justice for a comment on Martell's release.

Landry denied charges by both the Liberals and Tories of attempting to control the message around Martell's release, saying his staff needed an entire day to fact check the story. He did not elaborate on what facts needed checking.

"If you're implying something, that we tried to mess with that, I think people should know me by now," he said. "If I know the information, we're getting it out there. I believe in transparency, open communication."

Landry maintained his department would have put out a release even if Martell had turned himself in, which Martell told police he would on Tuesday morning.

"You either take my word on it or you don't."

Error

A "clerical error" was responsible for Martell's release, according to the justice department.

It says they will save about $35 on the price of the generic drug, atorvastatin.

The new pricing takes effect Dec. 1.

▶ Johanna Skibsrud of Pictou County tears up after winning the Scotiabank Giller Prize for her book The Sentimentalists in Toronto on Tuesday.

Johanna Skibsrud of Scotsburn, Pictou Co., is the toast of the literary world this week after nabbing the $50,000 Scotiabank Giller Prize, but the author's tiny Nova Scotia publisher couldn't say when her winning title would be available in big bookstore chains.

The Sentimentalists, Skibsrud's debut novel, is published by Kentville-based Gaspereau Press, which can only print about 1,000 copies a week.

The company prides itself on hand-crafted books and has been steadfast in its refusal to outsource in order to meet demand.

"Our plan is still to produce the books here and to produce them at a sane rate that we can manage," publisher Andrew Steeves said.

"You have to hope for the goodwill and the patience of the booksellers and the readers. I think it's an interesting opportunity to slow the world down a hair and let people realize that good books don't go stale."

A Giller win is like winning a literary lottery — particularly for an unknown author — and typically results in a boost in sales.

But Indigo Books & Music stores did not have a single copy of the book in stock on Wednesday and president Joel Silver said he had no idea if they'd get The Sentimentalists in time for Christmas shopping.

Twitter twits feel full force of the law

- One allegedly called for a journalist to be stoned
- One fined for threatening to blow airport 'sky high'

Two cases in Britain are testing the limits of freedom of speech on the Internet.

A city councillor in England has been arrested after allegedly posting a message on Twitter calling for a journalist to be stoned to death.

Meanwhile, a court has upheld the conviction of a man who tweeted about blowing up his local airport.

Police said Birmingham city Coun. Gareth Compton was arrested on suspicion of sending an offensive or indecent message. He has not been charged and was released on bail.

Mad message

- Media reports say Birmingham city Coun. Gareth Compton posted on Twitter: "Can someone please stone Yasmin Alibhai-Brown to death? It would be a blessing, really."
- Alibhai-Brown is a liberal columnist for The Independent newspaper.

On Thursday, Compton tweeted an apology for his "ill-conceived attempt at humour."

Also Thursday, a court rejected an appeal by Paul Chambers, who was convicted of sending a threatening message after saying on Twitter that he would blow up an airport if his flight was delayed.

Chambers, 26, was arrested after he posted a message saying he'd blow the airport "sky high" if his flight was delayed.

A judge found him guilty of sending an offensive, indecent, obscene or menacing message.

On Thursday, Judge Jacqueline Davies at Doncaster Crown Court upheld the conviction, saying Chambers' message was "obviously menacing." He was ordered to pay $3,225 in prosecution costs, in addition to a $620 fine.

Manner of mafioso's killing striking

Montreal crime boss Nicolo Rizzuto shot dead in his home Wednesday ◐ Unusual location for mob hit

A single bullet hole through the window. White chairs arranged along the solarium with a serene view onto the backyard bushes. And a statue of the Virgin Mary, her arms outstretched.

This is where Nicolo Rizzuto met his end.

Evidence at the crime scene supports the theory, cited in news reports, that a gunshot through the window brought down a Mafia don who once lorded over the underworld with powerful international ties.

The decision to kill him in his own home, with his wife and daughter nearby, was interpreted as an intentional deviation from the Italian Mafia's standard modus operandi for murder.

40,000

Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera reported that 40,000 people attended a recent anti-Mafia march in Calabria.

"It's out of the ordinary," said Pierre de Champlain, a retired RCMP organized-crime analyst and author.

"In the Sicilian Mafia, when we want to kill a leader, usually it's done in public and face-to-face. It's never done in the house and even less often with family members present."

Police were combing the area Thursday, one day after Rizzuto was felled in his cozy living room by an assassin's bullet.

"They could have killed him in any other place," said Antonio Nicaso, a Toronto-based journalist and author specializing in the Mafia.

"The fact that they killed him at home is really an insult. Killing him in front of his wife and daughter was a punishment they could have avoided."

Militants strike heart of Karachi

15 Sindh government spokeswoman Sharmila Farooqi said 15 people, including five police officers, were killed. About 100 people were injured.

Militants attacked a police compound in the heart of Pakistan's largest city on Thursday with a hail of gunfire and a massive car bomb, levelling the building and killing at least 15 people, authorities and witnesses said.

The gang of around six gunmen managed to penetrate a high-security area of Karachi that is home to the U.S Consulate, two luxury hotels and the offices of regional leaders. While no stranger to extremist violence, Karachi has not witnessed this kind of organized assault in recent years.

It was the first major attack against a government target outside the northwestern tribal regions for several months, showing the reach of Islamist militants seeking to overthrow the U.S.-allied government despite efforts to crack down on them over the last three years.

The gunmen first opened fire on the offices of the Crime Investigation Department before detonating a huge car bomb, the Sindh Home Minister said. The building has a detention facility that was believed to be holding criminals, and possibly militants.

While militant groups often claim responsibility for the attacks, some Muslim political parties and leaders, angry at the U.S. role in Afghanistan, allege American involvement, hampering the fight. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Afghan mission extended, PM says

Feds considering keeping troops in Kabul until 2014, sources say

Stephen Harper says he decided with some "reluctance" to extend Canada's military mission in Afghanistan.

The prime minister confirmed Thursday that Canadian troops will stay in Afghanistan to train the country's military after the current combat mission ends in July.

"Look, I'm not going to kid you. Down deep my preference would be, would have been to see a complete end to the military mission," he said.

Previously, Harper had insisted that Canadian troop would withdraw by July. However, NATO countries have been working for months to persuade him to change his mind, and the opposition Liberals suggested they would support an extended training mission. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No combat

- Harper, speaking on the sidelines of the G20 Summit, acknowledged he has been under pressure by NATO allies to continue in a combat role, but he said a training role was the most he could agree to.
- He said he told his NATO allies in no uncertain terms that Canada's combat role is coming to an end, but added that he sees merit in the argument that Afghan troops aren't ready to stand on their own and Canada could help in their training.
- "I don't want to risk the gains that Canadian soldiers have fought for and have sacrificed in such significant numbers by pulling out too early, if we can avoid that," he said.

For those who fought for our freedom

Tens of thousands thronged around the towering National War Memorial in the nation's capital to mark Remembrance Day with the time-honoured rituals of mourning for the country's military dead.

The ritual opened with O Canada. A military bugler then sent the haunting notes of The Last Post echoing over the silent throng.

As the great bell of the Peace Tower marked 11 a.m. and its flag sank to half-mast, a gun boomed out and the crowd paused for a two-minute silence. Veterans with medals from three wars watched the rituals played out. Grizzled oldsters in blazers with medals from 1939-45 and the Korean War stood with young men and women wearing awards from Afghanistan. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canucks land ashore

Four days of rationed cold food, stinky toilets, dark cabins and dead cellphones ◐ The Carnival Splendor finally docks in San Diego harbour

Kathleen Ehlert has spent the last four days scouring the Internet, flipping between news channels and waiting by the phone, hoping for any word on her family stranded aboard a disabled cruise ship.

On Thursday, she finally heard from them. It was a short, crackly call from her mother.

"... She was yelling and saying, 'We're fine, we're here,'" said the 29-year-old Ehlert, who lives in Calgary.

"She was on the verge of tears, saying, 'This hasn't been fun.'"

Her family members were among the nearly 4,500 people, including nearly 200 Canadians, who were on board the Carnival Splendor when it lost power Monday following a fire in the engine room.

Myanmar's pro-junta party wins majority

Myanmar's pro-junta political party secured a majority of seats in both houses of parliament, the latest official results from the country's first election in 20 years showed.

The partial batch of results released Thursday confirm the victory of the Union Solidarity and Development Party in Sunday's vote, which critics say was marked by fraud and engineered to sustain the military's power.

The latest results were announced the same day democracy icon Aung San Suu Kyi lost an appeal for early release from house arrest.

The sentence is due to expire Saturday, and close aides remain optimistic she will be freed.

The junta has not confirmed the 65-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner will be set free, but government officials have quietly said they are making "necessary security preparations" for this weekend.

▶ Cyril Martin

5 MINUTES WITH: CYRIL MARTIN

Cyril Martin, who has lived in Halifax all his life, signed up to go to war when he was "18 and a half." He spent more than three years in Europe at the end of the Second World War and came home to a career working at CN Rail. Martin, 87, sat in the veterans' section and watched the Remembrance Day ceremony at Grand Parade yesterday.

Where did you go after you signed up?
I was in Ontario training and then I went through Halifax. I took a ship here over to Scotland, and went to England to do some training there. I went to France with a unit.

When was that?
That was in 1944, just after D-Day. I didn't land on D-Day, but I landed on the beach and went into France.

How long were you there?
I got stuck in Germany (after the war ended) as occupation force because I didn't have enough points to get home.

What was your rank?
I was a private, a private all the way. That's all I wanted.

Can you share a few memories of what the war years were like?
When you landed in France it was quite bad. There was heavy fighting and we're coming in right behind it. There were animals and there were some bodies that were not picked up or looked after at that time. It wasn't very pleasant.

"(The crowds) weren't like this all the time. It's wonderful to see such interest."

Did you lose a lot of good friends?
No, not too many. I was very fortunate. My unit, we were supplying the division we were in and I was in ordinance. We supplied everything from vehicles to stores and stuff like that.

Do you attend Remembrance Day ceremonies every year?
As best I can.

Is it nice to see such big crowds?
It's wonderful. They weren't like this all the time. It's wonderful to see such interest.

Worth mentioning

Grumpy the clown won the election in a laugher. Now he has to prove that he can read and write.

The Sao Paulo Electoral Court held a closed-door exam for the clown turned congressman-elect Thursday to determine if he meets a constitutional mandate that federal lawmakers be literate.

Francisco Silva became famous as Tiririca — "Grumpy" in Portuguese — and received about 1.3 million votes, nearly twice as many as the next-highest vote-getter in last month's congressional elections. His campaign videos drew millions of viewers on the Internet, with slogans such as "It can't get any worse" and "What does a federal deputy do? Truly, I don't know. But vote for me and you'll find out."

But a less humorous element emerged during the campaign: Allegations that Silva, like 10 per cent of Brazilians, is illiterate. Judge Aloisio Silveira ordered that Silva must demonstrate he can read and write.

Following Thursday's test, the president of the electoral court, Judge Walter de Almeida Guilherme, told reporters that Silva "read and wrote" during the exam, but did not offer more details. A final ruling is not expected before Friday.

A CASH COW CALLED SAQ

Every Christmas season, my girlfriend and I hit the snowy road. Destination: The Hawkesbury LCBO, where I always leave the store with two cases of red wine.

Hundreds of Quebecers make similar pilgrimages every year.

Why? Most bottles are cheaper there than in Quebec. (Like the SAQ, the LCBO is a state monopoly. Just less rapacious.)

But I shouldn't have to go to Hawkesbury. Consumers in Quebec, and elsewhere in Canada, could find cheaper wines home ... if we could just break the liquor boards' monopolies across the country.

In Quebec, defenders of the status quo keep repeating that the SAQ is a "cash cow" for the State. But this generous yearly dividend comes from our wallets. We, captive consumers, pay a premium for our bottles of Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon. The only reason the SAQ makes an abnormally high profit is because it's a monopoly. Without competitors, it can bleed consumers. The SAQ takes a margin of 40 per cent to 135 per cent on each bottle it sells. It pays $5 to a producer, takes a $7 cut and sells the bottle for $15 (including taxes). Yes, the SAQ is a cash cow for politicians. But it's us, the consumers, who are being milked!

Should we privatize the SAQ? Not necessarily. A private monopoly would be no better than a public one. What we need is more competition. We need to allow entrepreneurs to open wine shops and compete with the SAQ. We also need to allow people to buy bottles from around the world over the Internet, without having to go through the SAQ. For example: You like the Jacob's Creek Shiraz 2007? A store in New Jersey is selling it for $6.53. On the SAQ's shelves, the same bottle will set you back $14.90. This wine can be bought on the Internet and delivered to your door in less than two weeks.

The problem is not the SAQ itself, or the LCBO. The problem is the prohibition of competition. In Belgium, a non-producing country whose population and culture are similar to Quebec's, the wine market is completely free. Hundreds of retailers compete with each other. As a result, they have three times the wines, for a third of the price.

"Yes, Alberta has privatized its market, but only partially. The government has kept a monopoly over wholesale and distribution."

Quebecers and other Canadians like wine. Many are connoisseurs, and eager to try new varieties and vineyards. They deserve better than a state monopoly that is clearly corked.

The Pedophile's Guide to Love and Pleasure previously sold on Amazon

Amazon is no longer selling a self-published guide for pedophiles. It wasn't immediately clear whether Amazon.com Inc. had pulled the item, or whether the author withdrew it. Amazon did not immediately return messages Thursday. The book, The Pedophile's Guide to Love and Pleasure: a Child-lover's Code of Conduct, offers advice to pedophiles on how to make a sexual encounter with a child as safe as possible. It includes descriptions of encounters.

Got no job? You'll work anyway: U.K.

Britain announced the most radical overhaul in decades Thursday to its welfare system, pledging harsh penalties for those who refuse jobs and community work service for the unemployed in return for benefit checks.

Work and Pensions Secretary Iain Duncan Smith unveiled sharp changes to the country's cradle-to-grave social safety net, which was first introduced after the Second World War to better protect newborns, families, the jobless and the sick. Critics have long said the British system offered hefty benefits unavailable to other citizens across Europe, the U.S. and other major economies, encouraging some people to snub modest jobs in favour of an easy life on handouts. "The message is clear. If you can work, then a life of benefits will no longer be an option," said Prime Minister David Cameron.

The Social Network and the King's Speech are two early Oscar darlings ◐ Firth, Portman favoured to get the Best Acting nominations ◐ With 10 Best Picture nominees, the field has a wide variety of hopefuls, from blockbuster Harry Potter to Sundance fave Winter's Bone

THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY FOX SEARCHLIGHT

▶ Colin Firth and Natalie Portman are getting Oscar buzz for their work in The King's Speech and Black Swan.

It's the start of Oscar season

Two dramas unfolding in a new world of global communications could emerge as front-runners at the Academy Awards.

Director David Fincher's The Social Network is set in modern times as the founders of the website Facebook battle over their creation. Tom Hooper's The King's Speech takes place in the 1920s and '30s as Queen Elizabeth II's dad struggles with his speech impediment at a time when the royal family is counted on to voice reassurance through the new medium of radio.

The Social Network has almost universal acclaim, a hip subject and impressive box-office results since it opened Oct. 1. The King's Speech does not open until late November, but it's an old-fashioned awards contender; a classy period piece that has been an audience favourite at film festivals for its heart and humour.

Nominations come out Jan. 25, with the Oscars presented on Feb. 27.

BEST PICTURE

Assuming The King's Speech and The Social Network make the cut, eight other films will compete for the remaining slots as the Oscars go with 10 best-picture nominees again. B Blockbusters such as animated comedy Toy Story 3, heist drama The Town and Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 1, the next-to-last film in the fantasy franchise, are contenders.

Smaller releases could slip in, including Ozark thriller and top Sundance winner Winter's Bone, the family comic drama The Kids Are All Right, 127 hours, and Never Let Me Go, a tragic tale set in an alternate reality.

Other contenders include Hereafter, Another Year, Somewhere, Barney's Version, Black Swan, True Grit and How Do You Know.

BEST ACTOR

Colin Firth earned his first Oscar nomination for last year's A Single Man, and some who have seen him as George VI in The King's Speech think Oscar voters should just hand him the best-actor prize.

There's plenty of glibness to be had among other contenders, including Jesse Eisenberg's savagely biting Facebook founder in The Social Network; James Franco as a one-man force of nature, playing a climber trapped alone in a canyon in 127 Hours; and Paul Giamatti in the life story of a crusty producer of schlock TV in Barney's Version.

BEST ACTRESS

Natalie Portman is an unholy terror in Black Swan. A past supporting-actress nominee for Closer, Portman gives herself completely to her role as a goody two-shoes ballerina whose menacing dark side emerges as she prepares for her dream role in Swan Lake.

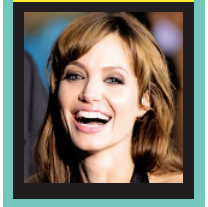

Annette Bening dominates The Kids Are All Right as the acerbic authoritarian in a family of lesbian parents.

Other possibilities are Anne Hathaway, Love & Other Drugs; Sally Hawkins, Made in Dagenham; Nicole Kidman, Rabbit Hole; Diane Lane, Secretariat; Jennifer Lawrence, Winter's Bone; Helen Mirren, The Tempest; Carey Mulligan, Never Let Me Go; Naomi Watts, Fair Game; Michelle Williams, Blue Valentine.

CINEMA'S TAKE ON TV

There are no second chances or do-overs in live television. Just ask the cast of the Armchair Theatre play Underground who had to continue performing even though the star of the show, Gareth Jones, died during the live broadcast. The show, as they say, must go on whether your star drops dead, you have a wardrobe malfunction, or, as we see in this weekend's Morning Glory, your co-hosts can't stand one another.

The unpredictability of live television is exciting, so it's not surprising that movies about TV have been around almost since the boob tube's beginnings.

Just nine years after regular commercial network television programming began in the U.S. A Face in the Crowd, Andy Griffith's 1957 film debut, showed the dangers of live television. The future Andy of Mayberry played Larry "Lonesome" Rhodes, a charismatic television star whose career falls apart when an open microphone picks up a rant about his viewers — he calls them "idiots, morons, and guinea pigs" — during a live show.

That rant ruined Lonesome's career but in Network the immediacy of a live tirade was used to much different effect. Peter Finch plays longtime news anchor Howard Beale who reignites his career with a series of angry diatribes and the catchphrase, "I'm as mad as hell, and I'm not going to take this anymore!" The motto struck a chord with people ever since.

A very different slogan, inspired by the amiable goodbye Edward R. Murrow used to sign-off his broadcasts, served as the title of Good Night and Good and Good Luck. The story of Murrow's battles against McCarthyism showed the power of early television, allowing Murrow to expose Communist hunter Joe McCarthy for what he was — a fear monger — live on air. "We will not be driven by fear into an age of unreason," he said.

Perhaps the best movie about live television is My Favorite Year, a fictionalized account of Errol Flynn's appearance on the variety program Your Show of Shows. It's a frenzied and very funny account that breathes new life into the saying "the show must go on." Best line? "I'm not an actor, I'm a movie star!"

Watts goes from mom to CIA spy

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

When Naomi Watts was cast as outed CIA agent Valerie Plame in Fair Game, director Doug Liman had just one criticism of her.

"Doug said, 'You're too soft and maternal, and you're going to boot camp,'" she remembers. "I did some paramilitary training for three days. So don't mess with me."

The reason she looked a bit maternal, of course, was because she had just given birth to her second son with husband Liev Schreiber.

"Basically, I had a baby on December 13, I read the script on December 28 and we were filming in February," she says.

And while three days may not seem like all that long, the grueling training she went through — alongside actual government trainees — sounds pretty gruesome. At least the details she's allowed to disclose, that is.

"There's one thing I'm not even allowed to talk about," she says. "As Doug walked out, they sort of kicked me in the shins and threw me to the ground and I went, 'Ow!' and he said, 'OK, don't say ow again unless you need to go to the hospital.' So it was intense."

Luckily, she had some support at home, as Schreiber was preparing for another CIA role in Salt while she studied up for Fair Game, which proved convenient.

"It was very funny and very strange to have, first of all, two of us shooting at the same time — that's the first time it ever happened with us — and second of all that we were both playing spies," she says.

Getting to know your character

For Watts, playing not only a real person but also one still living — and not far removed from the events of the film — proved especially intriguing. But while she got to meet and work with Valerie Plame, she admits the schedule didn't allow for a lot of politeness.

"You don't get her all at once. It takes time. And I'm kind of like that, too," Watts says. "So we just were careful and easy with each other and we slowly went into it, and then finally it was crunch time and I just presented her with a list of very confronting and personal questions."

And while co-star Sean Penn had the luxury of visiting Plame and husband Joe Wilson at their home in New Mexico, Watts' being a recent mother made getting time together trickier.

"We worked out that Santa Fe to New York door-to-door travel was 12 hours, and it wasn't going to be an easy thing," Watts says. "She said, 'Well OK, how about we meet halfway? Let's meet at Chicago airport?' And I'm like, who meets at an airport? Oh, a spy does."

Potter gets set for final pair of films

The next-to-last installment of the Harry Potter franchise is nearly out Potter and pals go on a 'road trip' to look for help to battle Voldemort

Harry Potter's journey is nearly over.

Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 1 – the next-to-last installment in the film franchise about the teen wizard – premiered Thursday in London ahead of its theatrical release next week.

The adaptation of J.K. Rowling's seventh and final novel comes in two installments, with the second film due out next July.

Fans may leave frustrated that they have to wait eight months for the finale, but Rowling's last book needed to be broken into two parts for the big screen, said Daniel Radcliffe, who stars as Harry.

"I was always very much in favour of it being two parts, and I think most people were, simply because we all realized there was no way you could do justice to the book and really capture the story in one film," Radcliffe told The Associated Press.

In the first six books, there was secondary action that could be cut from the movies, "themes, which while exciting and fans love them, simply don't add anything to the main thrust of the story," Radcliffe said. "In the seventh book, there is very little extraneous stuff that's not actually contributing heavily to the main plot line."

Part 1 sends Harry and pals Hermione (Emma Watson) and Ron (Rupert Grint) outside their usual haunts at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry as they search for artifacts that are the key to the power of dark Lord Voldemort (Ralph Fiennes).

"It's kind of an edgy road movie where these three iconic characters, who we've always seen in this magical place called Hogwarts, are thrust out in to the big, bad world and have to fend for themselves and survive," said David Yates, who directed both parts of Deathly Hallows as well as the fifth and sixth Harry Potter films.

"As much as we love Hogwarts, we needed a fresh environment. We needed to be out of our comfort zones, definitely," Watson said.

A train ride that goes nowhere

Unstoppable
Genre: Action
Director: Tony Scott
Stars: Denzel Washington, Chris Pine, Rosario Dawson

How do you make a film about a runaway train exciting? It's a vehicle on a set track that's route is known before it ever loses control.

The solution director Tony Scott came up with was to fill the train with generic "hazardous material" and hire a bunch of recognizable actors too look sweaty and stressed in a never-ending series of extreme close-ups. Sure, there are a few scenes where the train crashes into something and makes a pretty explosion, but it's still practically impossible to be thrilled by a speeding train.

Part of the problem is that this is a true story that has been dressed up with so much Hollywood gloss that not a thread of reality remains.

Denzel Washington and Chris "Captain Kirk" Pine aren't believable as working class train workers for a second and when both actors delve into their troubled personal lives with mid-chase monologues the movie grinds to a laughable halt (if only they could have stopped the runaway train with melodrama).

Now, it's not all bad. Tony Scott knows how to make a movie look good and his use of physical effects is a nice nostalgic change of pace from CGI spectacle. Unfortunately none of that changes the fact that Unstoppable is just one big dumb hollow movie.

PHIL BROWN

Stone
Genre: Drama
Director: John Curran
Stars: Robert De Niro, Edward Norton, Mila Jovovich

Stone is a muddled, but intriguing prison drama about a burned out corrections officer, a manipulative con with a conscience, and his femme fatale-esque wife desperate to get a release. This movie should have been a smart dirty thriller, but is teased out into an almost theological think piece by director John Curran.

The approach works wonders for the cast, with DeNiro giving a thoughtful if somewhat lazy performance (like all his late career appearances), Norton offering an entertaining and non-racial spin on his hyper-intelligent American History X thug (now with unintentionally hysterical cornrows!), and Jovovich contributing easily the best work of her career.

Watching the three actors play off each other is a blast even if Curran's ill-conceived attempts to elevate the genre material are fruitless and distracting.

PHIL BROWN

Monsters
Genre: Action/Drama
Director: Gareth Edwards
Stars: Scoot McNairy, Whitney Able

Don't let the title fool you — there aren't actually a ton of Monsters in this ambitious but slightly unfulfilling sci-fi thriller. Made on a shoestring budget by effects wunderkind Gareth Edwards, Monsters is essentially a road movie about a young American couple crossing "infected" Mexico where an enormous octopus-like species has been leaving a wake of destruction. Like District 9, Monsters is intent on selling subtext but its ulterior focus will disappoint fans set more on spooky sci-fi thrills. As an independent project however, its impressive; when those giant-tentacled space creatures do appear, they're pretty cool.

Avril ready to rock out again

BILL KOSTROUN/ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ After a three-year hiatus, Lavigne will release an album.

Avril Lavigne says her fourth record is set for release after "bureaucratic BS" held it back for a year.

Writing on her MySpace blog, the 26-year-old pop-punker betrayed agitation with her record company, which she felt made the process of crafting her album even more difficult.

"I'm done with my 4th record!!! Well, actually I have been done for a year... and now my record company have finally decided to release it," she wrote in a post on Wednesday. "OMG...How nice! Thanks guys.

"This has been a really difficult record for me to create and to release. Not only is this the most meaningful and special record I have written, it is sincere, honest and close to my heart.

"But for the first time I experienced a bunch of bureaucratic BS. People do their best work when they are doing what they want, love and is natural for them, not when you are forcing them to be something that they are not."

Lavigne wrote that she produced tracks for the new record alone for the first time. She says the album includes tracks she wrote solo and with friends.

"I have pushed myself and I feel proud," she wrote. The Ontario native's last record was 2007's The Best Damn Thing. The Juno-nominated album featured the No. 1 hit Girlfriend and went platinum twice in Canada. It also sold well around the world. But the intervening years have been tumultuous for Lavigne. She announced her divorce from Sum 41 frontman Deryck Whibley last year and decided to make a management change. This fourth record has been troublesome, too. It was originally slated for release in fall, 2009. Later, Lavigne told reporters it would see a June release.

"I know you guys have been waiting for a long time...and so have I, but not by choice," she wrote.

She says the first single from the album is called What the Hell. She's planning on shooting the video in two weeks, aiming at a January release date.

Lavigne wrote that she's also working on her clothing line, Abbey Dawn, which she plans to take internationally.

Canada, meet your humble host

TV star Cory Monteith gleeful about Gemini gig

IAN JOHNSTON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Life has changed quite drastically for Glee star Cory Monteith in the past two years. A self-described Canadian "working class actor," Glee's success means Monteith now has to cope with daily paparazzi and ever-present fans. Still, he ain't complaining.

"I went for coffee yesterday and a little car pulled up in front of me and started taking pictures of me, which was fine," says Monteith, who plays Finn Hudson on the dramedy.

"And then I went back to my car and started driving away and I saw the guy running to his car to try and follow me. I just roll with it. It's just part and parcel of what this all is. Making sure my zipper is up when I leave the house is really important."

"Making sure my zipper is up when I leave the house is really important."
CORY MONTEITH ON HIS NEWFOUND RELATIONSHIP WITH THE PAPARAZZI

Part of that newfound fame means Monteith has been tabbed to host this year's Gemini Awards, honouring the best in Canadian television.

"I can't believe I'm part of the show and especially now I'm hosting. What the heck? Presenting is even cool, but I'm the host. It's a tall order."

Monteith credits his years spent as a busy west coast actor on shows like Stargate, Whistler, and Supernatural with preparing him for his recent success.

"Absolutely. It only helped me. I think having cut my teeth doing a lot of stuff back home and figuring out how to act has proven indispensable," says Monteith, who has a few skeletons in his acting closet that may be revealed at the Geminis.

"That's a good idea. I'm absolutely prepared to make fun of myself. So if anyone would like to talk about the funnier or dumber things that I've done, I'm game. There's a wolfman movie that comes to mind (Hybrid)."

In its second season, Monteith feels Glee is only now hitting its stride.

"I think the tone of the show has got more specified. I think the writing (and) the characters have gotten a lot more specific and the show has kind of developed a feel," he says.

Costello, who's nominated for best talk series for his show Spectacle, will perform with Feist, Sexsmith, fiddler Kendel Carson and bassist Barry Bales at the 25th Gemini Awards gala on Saturday. Big nominees heading into the show include CTV's cop drama Flashpoint, CBC's Republic of Doyle and HBO's Winnipeg-based comedy Less Than Kind.

Dead both disgusts and delights

AMC show offers an uncommon, sympathetic spin on horror genre

If you missed The Walking Dead last week, you missed a top contender for the most deliciously gross scene in television history.

In a desperate ploy to escape undetected by the zombies crowding downtown Atlanta, Sheriff Rick Grimes decided to fool them with a deathly masquerade. He found a zombie carcass and chopped it up with an axe, then smeared hunks of these goopy remains on his clothing. But he did it with respect. Rick, a man of conscience, first took a moment to mourn the ordinary guy this monster used to be.

Rick's fellow refugee, Glenn, who used to deliver pizza, was no less aghast at Rick's plan than were the viewers.

"If bad ideas were an Olympic event," said Glenn, "this would take the gold."

But the ruse worked - at least, until a sudden rainstorm outed Rick and Glenn by rinsing off their guts-and-stench disguise. They had to make a run for it.

By turns macabre, suspenseful, poignant and horribly funny, The Walking Dead is TV in a class by itself. So maybe it's no wonder that this AMC drama was an instant hit with its premiere Halloween night, drawing more than 5.3 million viewers, followed the next week by an audience nearly as large.

Based on the popular comic book of the same name, The Walking Dead depicts the aftermath of a zombie apocalypse confronted by a tattered group of survivors just outside Atlanta.

AMC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Actors Steven Yeun, left, and Andrew Lincoln, right, try to blend in with the zombie population on Walking Dead, airing Sundays at 10 p.m., EST on AMC.

Principal among them is Rick (played by series star Andrew Lincoln), who, in the series premiere, woke alone in a hospital from a gunshot-wound-induced coma to find the world flipped upside down. His wife and young son were among the missing. He fears they have died.

Now Rick and a band of other humans who survived the invasion must defend themselves against these so-called walkers, creatures always hungry for something - like a human - to feed on.

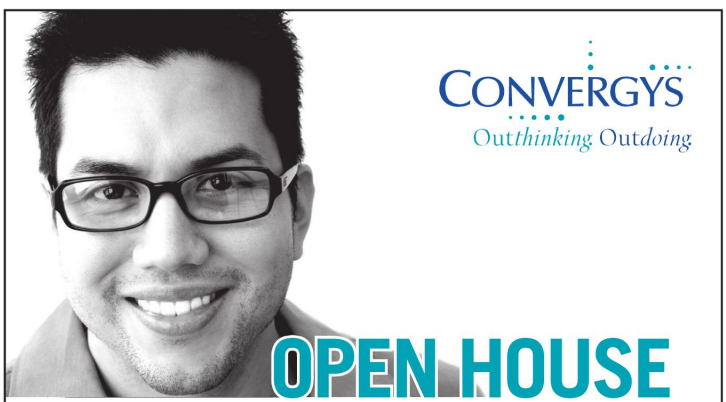

Happily, The Walking Dead not only defies horror-movie cliches, but also charts its own course in dramatizing a hideous plague and a shattered society.

As one counterintuitive twist, this series must be one of the quietest TV shows on record. Long, meditative stretches target characters trying to make sense of what's befallen them in such a soundless fashion you may think your TV is on the fritz.

Even the zombies, unless provoked, don't make much racket - mostly plaintive hisses and whimperings that can make you ache for them as much as recoil.

The series is beautifully styled and photographed, whether in the ravaged bleakness of downtown Atlanta, which has fallen to the zombies, or the piney-woods retreat, where a number of survivors are hiding out.

TV It looks like Conan O'Brien is getting the last laugh after all. MUSIC He died more than a year ago, but Michael Jackson is still causing controversy. This time, the newest to-do follows the release of a new song, Breaking News, supposedly by the late King of Pop. While Jackson's family is protesting the release, the music company behind it is vouching for its authenticity. The outcome? Likely a lot of sales and downloads.

The books each sell for $11.95.

HARRY POTTER MAGIC EYE

BOOKS: Remember those posters that were popular in the late-'80s and early-'90; a repetitive jumble of images that, the more you stared at them the more they turned into a single 3-D photo? OPRAH WINFREY

CELEBRITY: With all the attention she is getting, you have to wonder why she is walking away from her successful show. Go wild for mushroom soup

Soup is a perfect lunch or dinner option for the cold winter days ahead Step it up a notch by adding porcini mushrooms and ground walnuts to traditional mushroom soup

HO/CANADIAN PRESS

Wild Mushroom Soup

Wild mushrooms and walnuts add earthy flavour to this warming soup. This rich and luscious dish is an enticing change from the traditional mushroom soup. Porcini mushrooms and ground walnuts offer an earthy contrast to the mild broth.

Ingredients:
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) butter
- 750 g (1 1/2 lbs) wild and white mushrooms
- 60 g (2 oz) dried porcini mushrooms, reconstituted
- 250 ml (1 cup) ground walnuts
- 1/2 onion, diced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 celery stalks, diced
- 2 bay leaves
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) flour
- 1.5 l (6 cups) hot chicken or vegetable broth
- 75 ml (1/3 cup) sherry
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) fresh thyme
- 250 ml (1 cup) whipping cream
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- Sauteed mushrooms and/or crumbled blue cheese, for garnish

Wild Mushroom Soup Preparation:

1. To reconstitute dried porcini mushrooms: Follow directions on the package. Or combine porcini and 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) boiling water in medium bowl. Let stand until porcini softens, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove porcini from water and chop coarsely.
2. In a large, heavy-bottomed stock pot on high heat, melt butter. Add mushrooms, walnuts, onion, garlic, celery and bay leaves, and saute until lightly browned (5 to 10 minutes). Reduce heat to medium, stir in flour and cook for another 2 minutes. Stirring constantly, slowly add hot broth and sherry and bring to a boil.
3. Let simmer for 20 minutes and remove bay leaves.
4. Remove from heat and, using an immersion blender, pulse until mushrooms are nearly pureed or until desired consistency.
5. Return to heat, bring to a boil and add thyme and cream. Stir to combine. Garnish with sauteed wild mushrooms and/or crumbled blue cheese, if desired, and serve. Makes six servings.

Meatless made easy

Canadian Living vegetarian cookbook shows how diverse meatless meals have become in the kitchen

Vegetarianism is hardly a new culinary concept as more Canadians embrace its diversity and obvious health benefits.

"With the sheer number and variety of vegetables available now and the styles and recipes from around the world, we are seeing more meatless dishes on our tables," says Alison Kent, special publications food editor with Canadian Living magazine.

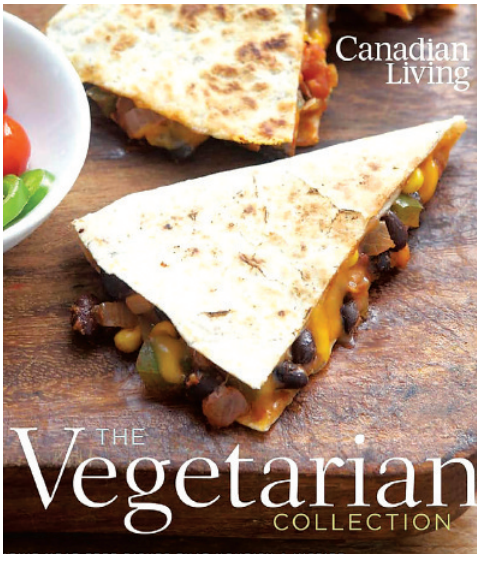

To celebrate the fact that vegetarian meals have become mainstream, the magazine has produced Canadian Living: The Vegetarian Collection: Creative Meat-Free Dishes That Nourish & Inspire (Transcontinental Books, $22.95, paperback).

Kent, a trained chef, was assisted by the magazine's test kitchen staff to offer a description of each vegetarian type, from vegan and lacto-vegetarian to flexitarian.

Kent says the recipes are mainly seasonless, although there are some wonderful fall and winter soups, risottos and roasted root vegetables as well as squash dishes and curries.

"Eating locally in winter is difficult," she says, "but between choosing hot house, frozen and root vegetables, it is possible."

The recipes are organized into eight food categories, including grains, pulses and beans, pasta, soy products, seeds and nuts, eggs and cheese, vegetables as well as a chapter on stocks, sauces, breads and basics. THE CANADIAN PRESS

This Crunchy Baked Macaroni and Cheese dish from Canadian Living: The Vegetarian Collection — Creative Meat-Free Dishes That Nourish & Inspire will be a surefire hit with everyone in the family.

Crunchy Baked Macaroni and Cheese Preparation:

1. In a large saucepan, melt half of the butter over medium heat; fry onion, salt and cayenne pepper, stirring occasionally, until onion is softened, about 5 minutes.
2. Stir in flour; cook, stirring, for 2 minutes. Whisk in milk and mustard; cook, whisking, until bubbly and thickened, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; in two additions, stir in 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) of the cheese until smooth.
3. Meanwhile, in a large pot of boiling salted water, cook pasta until al dente, about 8 minutes. Drain. Add to sauce; toss to coat. Scrape into a greased 1.5- or 2-l (6- or 8-cup) casserole dish.
4. elt remaining butter; toss together with panko and remaining cheese. Sprinkle over macaroni mixture. Bake in a 190 C (375 F) oven until bubbly and golden, about 25 minutes.

Canadian wine writer wins award

Natalie MacLean, an award-winning wine writer from Nepean, Ont., has won first prize in the M.F.K. Fisher Awards of Excellence in Culinary Writing competition, sponsored by Les Dames d'Escoffier International.

MacLean won with an Internet entry called Flying High, on her website nataliemaclean.com.

Her story, about Featherstone Winery in the grape-growing region of Niagara, chronicles the winery's battles to protect the vineyards from airborne predators and weeds without using synthetic chemicals. It's also a story about a husband-and-wife team who dream of creating a benchmark wine despite a harsh climate.

She beat out 78 other entries. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taylor suspended by Huskies

MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

As Atlantic University Sport unveiled Jahmeek Taylor as its player of the year yesterday, the Saint Mary's Huskies prepared for their biggest football game of the season without him.

The Huskies, who host the Acadia Axemen in the Loney Bowl on Saturday at 1 p.m., have suspended the dynamic receiver/returner for "failing to live up to the (athletic department's) code of conduct," according to school spokesman Steve Proctor.

An off-field incident on Tuesday night led to the suspension of Taylor, defensive back R.J. Cornish and linebacker Eboniel Stone.

Somehow, the Huskies will need to compensate for the 1,439 all-purpose yards and seven touchdowns Taylor accumulated in eight highlight-filled games.

"We'll keep our fingers crossed that someone steps up and makes some plays," said Huskies head coach Steve Sumarah. "It's going to be done by committee … and we feel very confident the guys we have here are going to get the job done."

Sumarah conceded it wasn't easy suspending a player of such significance, but said "at the end of the day it's a game, and I think life lessons are more important."

Quarterback Micah Brown claimed the loss of the conference MVP won't affect the Huskies' approach.

"The game plan is no different than it would be if he was here," Brown said.

"We just have to go on the field and execute our plays."

Football news

Adrian Saturley
The Terence Bay native and fifth-year Acadia Axemen defensive end has been named Atlantic University Sport football's outstanding lineman of the year. Saturley, who will not play again this season because of injury, led the nation with 9.5 sacks and set the AUS career sack record with 21.

Mark Holden
The fourth-year defensive back from Halifax was one of eight Saint Mary's Huskies to crack Atlantic University Sport's all-star team, announced Wednesday. Holden tied the Saint Mary's single-season interception record with six picks, returning two for touchdowns.

D looks to inflict grave punishment

Acadia QB will be targeted by Huskies defence in Loney Bowl

The Saint Mary's Huskies hope to make Saturday afternoon downright miserable for Kyle Graves.

Graves, a third-year quarterback who will lead the Acadia Axemen into Huskies Stadium for the Atlantic University Sport Loney Bowl on Saturday at 1 p.m., will face heavy pressure from a relentless Saint Mary's defence that leads the country with 28 sacks.

"For us to be successful, we have to control him and contain him," said Huskies head coach Steve Sumarah. "He is the catalyst to their offence."

Graves has thrown for 1,120 yards and six touchdowns and is second among all Atlantic University Sport rushers with 412 yards on the ground. The Huskies lost their season-opener to the Axemen but beat them twice the rest of the way as part of a sizzling five-game winning streak.

"As our defence goes, our team goes. It's been phenomenal the past five weeks, giving our offence great field position and an opportunity to score."
HUSKIES COACH STEVE SUMARAH

Linebacker Brian Ridgeway, who sacked Graves three times in a Week 8 drubbing, is hoping for more of the same on Saturday.

"If we can control him and put him off his game, it will look good for us for sure," Ridgeway said.

Scoring goals and doing it well

Mooseheads forward filling offensive void ◗ On pace for 37 goals this season

MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

When two-time team MVP Tomas Knotek moved on to the pros in the summer, the Halifax Mooseheads knew someone would have to fill the offensive void.

Early this season, 18-year-old left-winger Carl Gelinas is the one getting the job done.

"He's asserted himself as a real dynamic player in this league and it's great to see," says Mooseheads head coach Bobby Smith.

Gelinas, a 2009 fourth-round draft choice who is in just his second QMJHL season, is on pace for 37 goals after potting a hat trick last Saturday. He leads the team in goals with 12 and has 20 points in 22 games heading into Friday's 7 p.m. home game against the P.E.I. Rocket.

Along with top-line running mate Martin Frk, Gelinas suddenly has become the Herd's go-to offensive player.

"We've gotten a lot of opportunities … We're the line to score goals and we do it well," says Gelinas, who had 14 goals and 16 assists for 30 points in 56 games as a rookie.

"Maybe I'm more confident and this year I'm shooting more, so that's probably the reason."

Coaches and teammates alike rave about Gelinas's work ethic both in practices and in games.

The six-foot, 185-pound Shawinigan, Que., native isn't big or particularly fast, but he wins battles along the boards and has nifty skills and a bullet shot.

But more than anything else, it's his mental approach that is starting to set him apart.

"He's very determined to influence the game," Smith says. "That's a trait you only see in top players."

The Mooseheads, who have averaged a league-low 2.67 goals per game the past two seasons, haven't had a 30-goal scorer since 2007-08.

Gelinas is as good a bet as anybody to get there.

"With time, he's only going to bet better," says Mooseheads goalie Mathieu Corbeil.

"He's very skilled and really underestimated. If he continues like this, it will be great for our team."

GREAT NORTHERN TALENT

Field of Play

SCOTT RUSSELL

It may be intangible, but to be in a room of 1,000 people to witness the gods and goddesses of sport get their due and enter Canada's Sports Hall of Fame is awe-inspiring.

More than that it's humbling to realize that there is so much talent in this land of ice and snow. Like the country itself, that talent is expressed in complex, wonderful ways, and its limits are endless.

To become aware that this so-called "winter nation" has produced an Olympic gold-medal gymnast, a Formula One driving champion, the globe's pioneering and iconic wheelchair racer, a visionary who claimed Olympic rowing gold in a borrowed boat and then built Own the Podium, and a speedskater/cyclist who is arguably all of sport's most generous and accomplished athlete for all seasons, is both reassuring and enlightening.

This is to say nothing of an Olympic skiing champion, the greatest hockey goalie on the planet and a tireless professional football builder. The entire group has fashioned legendary status.

We have nothing to apologize for when it comes to considering the quality of our sporting heroes in Canada. There should be no whining or second-guessing as these graduates of our cultural landscape take their place at the head of the class.

They have all realized their vast potential and followed their difficult dreams. To a person, they represent lofty standards for the aspiring youth of this country.

Make no mistake, they are heroes and should be emulated. There should be no need to identify them here. They should all be household names by now.

Canada's Sports Hall of Fame will soon have a real home in Calgary. It will be a proper shrine to all this achievement where Canadians can go to acquaint themselves with these and other worthy champions who comprise a significant part of our folklore. Then it's up to us to get to know their names and relate the fascinating stories of this great northern talent to others.

Kyle Shewfelt, Jacques Villeneuve, Chantal Petitclerc, Roger Jackson, Clara Hughes, Jean-Luc Brassard, Patrick Roy and Bob Ackles are all worth keeping fresh in our memories.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If you are as smart as you think you are you will see the futility of trying too hard.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 The softer side of your nature will shine through today. You may look tough to the world at large but that's merely your hard outer shell – underneath you are more vulnerable than most people realize

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Sit back, close your eyes and imagine where you would most like to be and what you would most like to be doing by this time next year.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Life does not have to be a battle. You don't have to fight for success. The Sun in the communications area of your chart makes it easy for you to charm your way to the top. Get busy making new friends today.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 So many of the things you are worrying about bear little or no relation to reality, so stop thinking about them because that gives them power.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you need to kiss and make up, if you need to make amends, now is the time. Also, if you are having second thoughts about travel plans there is still time to put them on hold.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 As usual you are working too hard and as usual you think the way to get ahead is to work even harder. Big mistake!

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Forget about the little things that have gone wrong in your life and focus on the big things that have gone right. So you're not as rich and successful as you would like to be? So what!

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Make the most of the favorable cosmic climate to push ahead with a creative or artistic project you hope will impress enough important people to get you recognized. Everyone has a special talent. Yours can make you extra money.
